ONE FATALITY, FOUR PLANES LOST RESULT OF HAWAIIAN MISHAP

Flyer Trapped In Plane;
Rescuers Lost In Seas

HONOLULU, T. H., May 16.—As the aftermath of the mishap to the army Keystone bombing plane, which plunged into the sea off the island of Maui, and subsequent rescue efforts of other army and navy planes, one man was dead today and four planes were lost.

Staff Sergeant Joseph Becker, of Brooklyn, N. Y., lost his life when the bomber fell into the sea.

The planes lost, in addition to the bomber, were two army single seaters and a navy twin motor Douglas patrol. The navy plane sank as it was being towed to Pearl Harbor.

The Keystone bomber, under the command of Lieutenant T. L. Boyd, was making a training flight over the sea when an allison broke at a height of 8,000 feet. Three of its crew jumped in parachutes but Becker, the fourth, plunged into the ocean with the plane.

Private Cowan, whose shoulder was dislocated when he jumped in a parachute, said he was riding in the forward gunner's cockpit when he noticed the bomber leave the formation and begin nosing down. "Lieutenant Boyd shouted to me," he said, "and I crawled out of the cockpit and back over the cat walk. The terrific air pressure blew me off the plane."

Cowan said his legs were entangled in ropes when he struck the water but managed to kick himself clear. He stated he did not see Becker at any time during the mishap.

Just how Becker was caught fast in the plane may never be known. He was riding in the radio cockpit, which is considered a most favorable position in case of an accident. It is believed his parachute may have opened while he was still in the cockpit.

Lieutenant Boyd made a frantic effort to extricate Becker while the plane was falling. He was drawn into the stabilizer as he tried to free the sergeant and had his clothes torn off and his legs lacerated. He tore himself loose at a height of 3,000 feet and parachuted to safety.

Other planes going to the rescue of the crew of the bomber were unable to rise after alighting in the heavy seas. They, in turn, were eventually picked up by water craft.

Army officials credited the navy air force, which plotted the drift of the plane, and the Inter-Island Steamship Company with rescue work which prevented further loss of life.

FIVE ARRESTED IN GAMBLING RAIDS

CLEVELAND, O., May 16.—Five men were under arrest today as a result of a series of police raids on gambling joints yesterday.

The war against gambling was climaxed by a spectacular raid on a room in the Hermitage Hotel, where thirty race track fans and two bookies were gathered. The fans were released. Morris Miller, 29, and Melvin Gilbert, 23, were charged with recording wagers.

Police said they seized considerable race wager and lottery equipment in the raid.

Charles Johnson, 38, and James Jones, 29, were arrested in another raid on charges of promoting a scheme of chance. The men were operating a lottery based on bank clearings, police said.

A third raid resulted in the arrest of John Humpage, 30, whom police charged with keeping a place for recording wagers.

Police said they seized considerable race wager and lottery equipment in the raid.

Charles Johnson, 38, and James Jones, 29, were arrested in another raid on charges of promoting a scheme of chance. The men were operating a lottery based on bank clearings, police said.

The take-off was made in a heavy rain.

Miss Johnson is seeking to establish a time record on her flight. Bert Hiniker now holds the record of fifteen days.

BRITISH AVIATRIX CONTINUES FLIGHT

LONDON, May 16.—Amy Johnson, pretty 22-year-old British aviatrix, left Rangoon, Burma, today in her light biplane for Bangkok, Siam, on her solo flight from England to Australia, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

The take-off was made in a heavy rain.

Miss Johnson is seeking to establish a time record on her flight. Bert Hiniker now holds the record of fifteen days.

THOSE AWFUL FRESHMEN

Throw Rotten Eggs, Stage Pajama Parade At Cap-Burning Rites

COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—One of those old-fashioned college nights which include a pajama parade, an immense bonfire and a rough battle between freshmen and upper classmen, today had left many Ohio State University students nursing black eyes and bruised bodies and washing egg-spotted clothing.

Clad in pajamas of varied colors and braving the chill night air, several hundred freshmen paraded through downtown streets last night after they had allegedly been routed from the University campus by the upperclassmen.

A barrage of rotten eggs greeted the freshmen when they burned their scarlet and gray freshman caps, which they are required to wear during their first year at college. Many innocent bystanders were hit by the spoiled eggs.

The freshmen retreated across the campus, but their ranks were soon reorganized and they advanced to engage in a hand-to-hand struggle with their opponents. Many freshmen had their pajamas torn from them and black eyes and minor body bruises resulted.

Many of the group deserted the fight and, climbing aboard autos, toured downtown in their pajamas. Then started the parade. The freshmen attempted to "crash" several downtown picture shows, but all were guarded by uniformed policemen. The freshmen scattered without further hostilities.

In his baptismal campaign speech for the Republican nomination for U. S. senator from New Jersey, Morrow called for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the return of the control of liquor traffic to the individual states.

He declared that he advocated generous congressional appropriations for the prohibition amendment and the statutes thereunder as long as they were the law of the land. However, the ambassador recommended that such appropriations should be spent in preventing interstate liquor traffic and importation of liquor and that local police enforcement duties should be left to the states.

CHAPTER LIX
When Suwanee got the summons to appear at the office of the president of the World Wide Broadcasting Company immediately, he was not surprised.

He had been expecting it. He, therefore, buckled up his belt, figuratively speaking, and went forth to the second battle of the day.

When he opened the door of Du Pont's office the older man sat drumming the desk with his fingers. He nodded briefly, and Suwanee spoke. His voice held no sorrow or apology.

"Mr. Du Pont, I am extremely sorry for your sake that it was necessary for me to teach your son a lesson and give him something to remember me by. But I am not apologizing, I realize it will be necessary for me to resign. I am here to do so, without protest."

It was a long speech—bravely made. Du Pont turned his head, meanwhile, and looked out of the window.

"Why did you do it?" "Partly because I couldn't help it. Mostly because I thought he needed it and deserved it."

Du Pont turned to face him again:

"Those are quite primitive tactics for New York. This isn't the West, you know. I suppose you know a man can go to jail for taking little matters like that into his own hands here."

Suwanee nodded, his jaw hardening.

"I knew that before I started. Nevertheless, I'm not sorry. Send me to jail if you want to. When people find out whom I beat up I'll get a medal."

At that Du Pont roared with laughter. He laughed until his sides shook and the tears rolled down his cheeks. Suwanee was so astounded that all he could do was sit and look at him dumbly.

When he controlled himself the old man wiped his eyes. Then he held out his hand. Suwanee shook it. But he was still unlightened as to the sudden outburst.

Du Pont opened a box of cigars and pushed them over.
"Have a smoke, young man. I want to talk with you."

Suwanee lit one of them easily.

"Well, Mr. Du Pont, I didn't expect you to take it like this."

Du Pont laughed again, and tilted back in his chair, his fingers under his coat lapels.

"Collier, you did just the thing I've been wanting to do ever since that inflated bunch of ego and worthlessness grew up. Every day I've been so completely off my head about Elanda ever since she came here that I haven't been myself. She has made it clear, however, that she has ambitions other than marrying a ukulele player."

"You haven't told her who your father is," Du Pont said soberly, but with a twinkle in his eye.

"No, and I have no intentions of it yet. I am what I am. My father is what he is. His money, or the fact that he happened to be fortunate enough to become governor of Georgia, has nothing to do with me. I never have used it for publicity purposes—and I never shall. I've paid my own way ever since I got out of school."

Du Pont shook his head in wonder:

"Suwanee Collier, I don't know where a rich man's son ever got so much horse sense. I wish I had a daughter for you to marry."

Suwanee was embarrassed at the praise. Before he had time to answer a secretary put her head into the door:

"Miss Lee to see you, Mr. Du Pont."

Du Pont jumped and grinned:

"Go into this little inner office here, Suwanee. And don't close the door too tight. I'll see what I can find out for you."

"Suwanee Collier, I don't know where a rich man's son ever got so much horse sense. I wish I had a daughter for you to marry."

Du Pont was embarrassed at the praise. Before he had time to answer a secretary put her head into the door:

"Miss Lee to see you, Mr. Du Pont."

Du Pont looked up then:

"Worth fighting for—eh?"

Suwanee looked away:

"Yes, worth fighting for. But—I'm afraid very hard to get. Elanda has a great deal of ambition, Mr. Du Pont."

"More power to her," the old man fingered at some papers on his desk. "That's why you ought to go out and fight for her yourself. I

Suwanee nodded, his jaw hardening.

"I knew that before I started. Nevertheless, I'm not sorry. Send me to jail if you want to. When people find out whom I beat up I'll get a medal."

At that Du Pont roared with laughter. He laughed until his sides shook and the tears rolled down his cheeks. Suwanee was so astounded that all he could do was sit and look at him dumbly.

When he controlled himself the old man wiped his eyes. Then he held out his hand. Suwanee shook it. But he was still unlightened as to the sudden outburst.

Suwanee started to protest, but the multi-millionaire said briefly: "Do as I tell you. All's fair in love and in war."

Mrs. Frank Stryker, W. Second St., is spending a few days this week in Cincinnati as the guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Seth Snowden.

PLAYS DUAL ROLE

DALLAS MARSHALL

Two horses which became entangled in a railroad trestle a mile west of Jamestown held up a long merchant express train, New York bound, for more than three hours on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Thursday night before the animals could be extricated.

The horses were believed to have strayed from the farm home of L. C. Earley, near Jamestown. It is the theory they were wandering along the road, became frightened by the approaching train and started running along the railroad right-of-way in front of the locomotive.

Reaching the trestle, the legs of the animals became entangled. The engineer stopped the train and a wrecking car was obtained from a Jamestown garage.

Meanwhile one horse freed itself and leaped from the trestle to a creek bed forty feet below, miraculously escaping serious injury. With the aid of a crane, both horses were hauled from their precarious positions, none the worse for their experience except for bruises.

FINES SUSTAINED

Fines of $400 and costs imposed by A. E. Richards, mayor of Cedarville, upon Roy Shreades and Harry Schull, who were convicted of charges of selling liquor, were upheld by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy Thursday. Shreades and Schull filed petitions in error in Common Pleas Court seeking reversal of their conviction on the ground the fines imposed were excessive.

CARNIVAL COMING

Xenia Aerie, No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, is announcing plans to sponsor a carnival May 26 to May 31, inclusive, on the Ringer lot, Cincinnati Ave. The carnival is operated by Coty Fleming and embraces twelve shows, eight rides and between thirty-four and forty concessions.

STOP CONSTIPATION AT THE START

You May Pay If You Don't

When you realize that about 90% of all sickness begins with constipation, you won't want to take chances. If you have the symptoms—bad breath, coated tongue, always tired—put a stop to them now!

But do it the natural way. Not with pills and drugs, which give but temporary relief and must be taken in increasing doses. Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—an appetizing, deliciously flavored cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sweeps the system clean of wastes and impurities. Its action is natural; the roughage carries with it the poisons which clog your system.

In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in iron. Scientific research shows that nearly all this iron goes into the blood, making it give the rich glow of healthy color.

You'll like ALL-BRAN. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream—fruits or honey added. Physicians recommend it. And we guarantee it to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Two tablespoonsfuls daily—with every meal, in recurring cases.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold by all grocers in the red-and-green package. Served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

pounds of butter fat. Together with Dolores and Geraldine, two other cows owned by Mrs. Evans, this trio gave 45,000 pounds of milk, which sold for $1,500, returning a net profit of $963.

WHALEN ASKS REDS BE DEPORTED

Police Commissioner Grover Whalen, of New York, snapped as he testified before the House Immigration Committee at Washington, on the alleged activities of Russian communists in the United States. Whalen advocated a tightening up of the immigration laws and the deportation of certain aliens. On the left is Representative Samuel Dickstein, and right, Representative Albert Johnson.

CAESAR CREEK AND ROSS HIGH SCHOOLS GRADUATE CLASSES

Caesar Creek Twp. and Ross Twp. High Schools held their annual commencement exercises Thursday night with T. Howard Winters, assistant state director of education, as the commencement speaker at the Ross Twp. graduation, and L. C. Dick, Madison County School superintendent, delivering the main address at the Caesarcreek commencement.

The ten students composing the senior class at Caesarcreek High School were the last to graduate from this school inasmuch as Caesarcreek Twp., by an arrangement with the state department of education, will not maintain a high school after this year. The high school students in this district will hereafter be transported to another school district.

The valedictory address at the Caesar commencement was delivered by Helen Kyle, who was the first honor student of the graduating class. Helen Conklin was awarded second honors and she gave the class prophecy. The class history was read by Letitia Owings, who won third honors. Fourth honors went to Howard Bales, who gave the class farewell. Other members of the graduating class were: Herbert McKay, Guy Gravitt, Paul Middleton, Amy Owings, Demerius Lewis and Georgia Walery. H. L. Sams, the township superintendent, presented the diplomas, and the Wilmington High School orchestra furnished music.

Diplomas to the nine graduates of Ross High School were presented at the conclusion of the exercises.

At the close of the exercises, the students marched to the high school building where refreshments were served.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

CHRIST LIVES — For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised. And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. — 1 Cor. 15:16, 17.

THE POET LAUREATE

The poet-laureate of Great Britain, all the ridicule that lately has been heaped upon it to the contrary notwithstanding, appears to be so desirable an office that it cannot be filled without heartaches in one quarter or another. The Kipling fans, who bitterly criticized the government for passing over their favorite in 1913, are still alive—and kicking, against the pricks of politico-poetic realities. They seem not to realize that his faculty for making ardent friends also makes ardent enemies for him, which explains why he probably never will be poet laureate.

The man who turned from hanging Danny Deever to writing "The Recessional" suffers today for past political sins. A candidate for the poet-laureate must have a past as innocuous as that of a successful candidate for our own supreme court. The vigorous imperialism of the author of "The White Man's Burden" doesn't set well with socialist government; and his apparently incurable habit of advising the ministry on every conceivable subject, wouldn't set well with any government. The embers of the Irish question in which he burned his fingers are not entirely dead. A history of England, which he collaborated in writing, was denounced in parliament in 1911, and an effort was made to have it proscribed as a textbook in English schools on the alleged grounds that it contained libels on the Irish race. This effort failed; but later Sir Rufus Isaacs, attorney-general, was urged to prosecute Kipling for sedition, arising out of his verses "Ulster." Sir Rufus declined to do so. All this is remembered.

A socialist government, which for the moment advises the king with respect to all such honors, would naturally prefer a poet laureate whose past had been closer to "the peepul" and more remote from imperialism and the Irish imbroglio. John Masefield fills the bill. As between Masefield and Kipling's poetic affiliations, we don't think there is much to choose; but Masefield sailed before the mast, as a youth, and later tended bar in a New York saloon. All of which commends him to a government that plays to the proletariat. The stern realism and terrible pathos of his narrative poems also was in his favor, with the Clydesiders; while the tang of his ballads must have made it easier for a sailor king to sign his commission.

SUN SPOTS AND RADIO

Sun spots are held by scientists to affect radio reception. Distant stations have not come in for the past year as well as formerly, in spite of improved broadcasting. This is held to be due to the more powerful sunspots.

Dr. Stetson, director of Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan university, states that these spots rise and fall over periods of about 11 years, and there are also secondary variations, which reached a maximum last fall. He predicts a decrease of these spots until the very last of this year, which should improve radio reception, followed by a slight increase in the spots. The general tendency of them for some years to date has been downward, with favorable effects on the radio work.

These enormous places on the face of the sun, one of which is 40,000 miles across, are caused by whirlpools of gases, which rapidly cool and produce seemingly dark spots. It seems amazing that the voices that enter our homes can be affected by changes in the surface of a heavenly body 90,000,000 miles away.

Even if it has been declared legal to give away wine, we do not anticipate any grand rush by owners of the stuff to distribute it gratis.

Sometimes when we hear a man call another man a skunk we wonder what the epithet thrower has against the animal. It minds its own business.

WOMEN CLING TO DRUDGERY

Although fourteen and one-half million flatterns are now sooth-ing out the wrinkles in American homes and six million vacuum cleaners are picking up the dirt, the Atlanta Constitution declares women still cling to drudgery. It's amazing. It is said that only twelve and a half per cent of available electricity production is consumed in the home. Says the editor:

"No doubt when the average American housewife finally realizes how much of the drudgery of her home work can be taken away by following the lead of her husband, who uses in his factories and his office every possible labor saving device, there will be a different story to tell."

CHICAGO-NEW YORK

Hopping in an airplane one can go from Chicago to New York in five an half hours, or vice versa. The question now arises as to which is to become the suburb of the other. And we shall probably live to see that time cut from five and a half to three hours.

ART AND INDUSTRY

One reads the diary of a brave pioneer woman who made the trip to what is now Oregon in 1847. She rode in a covered wagon. Part of the time she walked. Quoted in the Journal of the National Education Association, her story paints the whole picture of the courage that built this amazing empire of the west. Hear her:

"My husband is sick. It rains and snows. We start this morning around the falls with our wagon. We have five miles to go. I carry my babe and lead, or rather carry, another through the snow, mud, and water almost to my knees." And so on to greater hardships and deprivations. Greater calls for courage. Thus the pioneer carved out the American republic.

With homes made and a place established, Americans began little by little to build the amazing machine of industrial civilization—the machine age. The cultivator of art and beauty there was little time for. Finally we gave time to art—on the side. All the time we kept building our machine—the industrial machine.

Now in the new beauty of skyscrapers, the new beauty of immense stores, the decoration of the homes of business, we see the beginning of the greatest of all mergers—the union of art and industry. It is the beginning of a new and better civilization.

BIOGRAPHY

NEW YORK CITY, New York—

For a long time I have been of a mind to settle back in my chair, and calmly, dispassionately, and with no malice aforthought, take up the reading of a series of unimportant biographies.

I start today with "Bernard Macfadden, A Study in Success" and "The True Story of Bernard Macfadden," the latter a suggestion that the former is all wet. If I survive these two, I will delve into "Chats With the Macfadden Family."

Between the three, I hope to get a fair line on the mental acrobatics of the peculiar personality who publishes about the dizzietest line of snappy reading in the nation, and who has made a fortune out of it.

HOME WORK

How are you going to keep a man down who, while in jail awaiting a trial for an alleged crime, puts an advertisement in a newspaper for work to be done at home?

In a morning newspaper recently appeared an advertisement for a job by a sales analyst, sales promotion and customers' control man." The "ad" frankly stated the man was "detained," and "awaiting trial in jail," and "just send particular to 37 Bronx County Jail."

At the Bronx courthouse, it was said No. 37 was Sallan A. Hattan, 25, Bronx salesman, accused of forging the name of a former employer. It was not learned whether he would be permitted to carry on his home work, but, anyway, he write him down King of Optimists.

SUGGESTION

Having found out that Thirty-fourth Street and Broadway is the noisiest place in New York, and that a spot in Greenwich Village is the quietest, the Noise Abatement Committee is seeking to correct the evils that jar the nerves of out-of-town visitors. Their first step is to put silencers on the subway turnstiles in the Grand Central terminal.

Now, if they will only muzzle the film magnates with million-dollar conversations and two-bit brags in the Astor Grill at lunch time, they will be getting somewhere.

WET AND DRY ISSUE THROWS NEXT PRESIDENTIAL BATTLE INTO STATE OF UNCERTAINTY

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—As Congressman James M. Beck told the house of representatives the other day:

"No one can say with any certainty that the next president will be and the man is blind who can not see that, with the disruption of both parties on the prohibition issue, any result is possible."

Besides having been called by the late Chief Justice Taft the greatest constitutional lawyer in the country, Representative Beck is a Philadelphia wet, to be sure. However, there are drys who consider the prohibition issue just as urgent as the ensenyanian considers it.

For instance, Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington, who recently demanded an extra session of congress to hurry up more dry legislation, was author of the "Jones five-and-ten law," as his name, attached to the statute, testifies.

In short, wets and drys are in agreement that something ought to be done about prohibition right speedily. Or rather the wets insist that something ought to be undone, while the drys are equally insistent that a great deal more ought to be done than congress has done to justify action of any sort upon the strength of the facts already collected.

It is fair to add that congress, on analysis of the "partial report" had to admit the accuracy of this qualifying clause.

As government commissions go, the Wickersham board does possess the merit of not being very expensive.

It made a start nearly a year ago with a congressional allowance of only a quarter of a million and Budget Director J. C. Roop estimates that it will have $75,000 of this money left over when the fiscal twelve months ends June 30.

Government agencies so much surpluses and $250,000 appropriations are such mere trifles for Uncle Sam, in comparison with the billions he is asked to dish out for other purposes, that it seems like looking a gift horse in the mouth for congress to cavil at the additional quarter million which President Hoover recently asked, to carry the commission through the 1931 fiscal year.

Nevertheless, a few tight-fisted lawmakers are asking the question to justify action of any sort upon the strength of the facts already collected.

The main difficulty is that the wets are at odds as to the best method of setting about to molest the nation: the drys are similarly split over the question as to the most propitious means of increasing its productivity.

In this dilemma it would be an immense help to one side or the other—and it might help both, by giving them a definite subject to fight over—if President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement would report unmistakably what it thinks of prohibition: specifically whether the commission deems it a good thing or a bad thing.

The truth is that the so-called Wickersham commission's conception of its "raison d'être" evidently is entirely different from the rea-wets' and real drys' conception of it.

Senator Carter Glass of Virginia (representing the dry element), who introduced the resolution giving the commission its original send-off, certainly expected it to do a straight job of prohibition investigating, having repeatedly said so with his accustomed forcefulness, as he beheld the inquiry straying off into the field of law observance and non-observance in general.

"Good work, Great Water Beetle," cried Peter. "You've kept your word and now I'll come out on from under cover."

When Peter stepped out and showed himself the Great Water Beetle almost sank from sheer exhaustion.

"My goodness me," gasped that fellow. "Never in all my born days did I ever see such a little human!" I didn't know they grew that way.

I say old fellow, if I had seen you I might not have obeyed your commands so quickly. Why, you're nothing to be afraid of!"

"Don't be too sure!" Peter made his voice sound as loud and as fierce as he could. "I can be mighty dangerous when my temper is up."

KI-RO NINE VICTIM OF LONG-DISTANCE CONTEST THURSDAY

Triple By Perrine In Tenth Stanza Spells Victory

In the first extra inning game of the season—a ten-inning affair—the Krippendorf-Dittman Shoes eked out an 8 to 7 victory over the Kiwanis-Rotary team in an interesting American League softball game Thursday night at Cox Athletic Field.

Krippendorf won out in the last half of the tenth when, with one down, Perrine tripled and trotted across the plate with the winning tally on an infield error.

The contest was staged in the remarkable time of only fifty-eight minutes considering that ten complete innings were played.

Fielding misplays on both sides were few. The Ki-Ro nine outhit the winners, twelve to eleven, but failed to convert its hits into runs as well as the Krippendorf team.

Krippendorf assumed a three-run lead in the opening inning as a result of a single, error and a home run by Perrine, second baseman, whose long-distance hitting was largely responsible for the narrow victory.

Another run was added in the third by Krippendorf on a base on balls, a single by Wakley and a couple of fielder's choices.

Fighting a game uphill battle, the Ki-Ro nine tallied one run in the third on Ervin's single and an error, two more in the sixth and squared the score in the seventh.

Ki-Ro went into the lead with a three-run spurge in the eighth but Krippendorf came back and evened matters by counting a like number of runs in the last half of the eighth. The ninth was scoreless for both teams although Hult, Ki-Ro second baseman, tripled in the first half of the round with one out.

Ki-Ro was retired in order in the first half of the tenth after which Krippendorf proceeded to win out in the last half of the stanza.

With two singles and a triple to his credit, Hult led the Ki-Ro hitters and R. Anderson hit safely three times for the winners. Ervin also got three bingles for Ki-Ro.

Bill Horner pitched for Krippendorf with Kimber serving them up for Ki-Ro.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. and Downtown Country Club nine tangled in a National League game Friday night. Box score:

RAIN MAY CHANGE OUTLOOK FOR DERBY; MAY HURT GALLANT FOX

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—For three days and nights, a sincere, honest rain has thrummed a steady tempest upon the gabled roofs and porches of the fine, old mansions of this fine old town and, with the monotony of virtue, it seems to be beating the tune of a persistent, insistent refrain.

"I'm going to make a horse race out of a buggy ride," it seems to keep saying over and over, all day, all night, until the chant grows insufferable and you almost want to shout your agreement, as agree you must. Rain today and tomorrow, it seems, is the only thing that can stop Gallant Fox, the Preakness winner, from climbing right up there with the driver and going for a buggy ride with Earle Sande in the running of the great Kentucky Derby shortly before five o'clock, Central Standard Time, tomorrow afternoon.

It isn't that Gallant Fox is admittedly unable to run in the mud. Nobody knows whether he can or not, although many suspect that he could run with reasonable speed.

SENIORS GIVE FINE PERFORMANCE HERE OF TARKINGTON PLAY

As one of its parting contributions to its Alma Mater, the senior class of Xenia Central High School presented the hilarious four-act comedy, "Seventeen," based on the popular novel by Booth Tarkington, as its annual class offering Thursday night in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium.

The class was particularly fortunate in the selection of the cast for the production and the performance of the fourteen students who had parts in the comedy reflected great credit upon Miss Olive Allen, head of the English department, under whose direction the play was produced.

The Tarkington novel abounded in laughter and the stage offering adhered rather closely to the original story. It was certainly good to be laughing again and if when the home talent season fades there will have been one other performance as good as this, it will have been a good season.

The plot itself, however, is in some respects so much like a lot of others that we are not absolutely convinced that it isn't a lot of others. Anyhow, the story is easily told and here it is:

William Sylvanus Baxter, played by Harold Bell, is a seventeen-year-old lad who has big ideas and does not think that the fact he is but seventeen should have anything to do with his plans for the future.

The curtain rises on the living room of the Baxters' home, at noon time on a June day. "Willy's" parents are conversing as he enters from an upper chamber reading a book. He resents being called "Willy" and says that he would rather people would call him Baxter. He is also known as "Silly Billy." He expresses his desire of having a dress suit to his parents, which they at once refuse. "Willy" has a kid sister known as "Jane," the part being taken by Martha Cummings, who is always bobbing up and saying things she shouldn't. As she enters she is very much occupied in eating a large sandwich and she begins to "tease" big brother right away.

He becomes furious and is about ready to do violence when Mrs. Baxter interferes. Helen LeSoudre is found in the role of Mrs. Baxter and Carl Harner has the role of Mr. Baxter. During the excitement a neighbor calls with a friend who is visiting her. The neighbor girl is "May Parcher" played by Virginia Guyton and her friend is "Lola Pratt," the part being taken by Alice Gordon. "Silly Billy" had previously heard of the arrival of Miss Pratt but did not know her. Upon her arrival to the Baxter household "Willy" fell in love with her at once although he did not get the chance to be properly introduced to her. "Willy" almost becomes frantic now to get a dress suit and does not feel that he should be imposed upon to do little chores for the family. His mother finally prevails upon him to help "Genesis." Ronald Atkinson, return some household goods from a nearby store. Upon his return to the house with wash tub and what not he finds Miss Pratt there and he drops the tub in disgrace and runs. Two of Willy's boy friends become acquainted with Miss Pratt. They are "Johnnie Watson" and "Joe Bullit," played by Minor Monroe and Ralph Baldwin respectively. Willy, however, becomes acquainted with Miss Pratt and is found with her almost all of the time for the next few weeks.

The second act is composed of two scenes, the first in the Baxter living room with the kid sister still teasing her big brother and reporting all kinds of tales to her mother and "Silly Billy" still pleading for a dress suit. The second scene takes place on the porch of the Parcher house. Everyone is having a very good time with the exception of "Mr. Parcher," Richard Moore, who does not care for the "nonsense" that the younger generation talks about. The crowd is centered around Lola most of the time with Billy deeply interested.

In the third act Billy is more determined than ever to have a dress suit and he goes so far as to try on his father's old dress suit. His parents still persist that he shall not have a dress suit but he finds out that he can get one cheap second hand if he can get enough money. He gathers up his old clothes and sells them and then tries to persuade his mother to give him the balance that he needs but she refuses. He finds a job counting old shingles and makes a few cents at this before "little Jane" suspects that her big brother is married or something else and tells her mother what she thinks Willy is doing. She has Willy return to the house immediately and then tells him to get the clothes that he has traded in on a new dress suit. He becomes very much disgruntled but obeys. Then George Cooper enters on the scene as a visitor from a nearby town and he at once becomes very much attached to Lola. Lola also becomes rather fond of him and the other boys become jealous. John Collins plays the part of the out-of-town visitor. Silly Billy is still determined to win the hand of the beautiful Miss Lola. His only worry now lies in the fact that he does not have a dress suit. At last Miss Pratt has found that she must return to her home and so the Parchers are going to give a large farewell party for her. Billy is invited as one of the guests for the occasion and so he begs harder than ever for a dress suit. His mother begins to see his point and sympathizes with him.

In the closing act everyone is at the Parcher homestead for the farewell party. Billy arrives late because he could not get his father's revamped dress suit on the way it should go. When he gets to see Lola he finds out that she has every-

ACCUSED OF MURDER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 16.—A preliminary hearing was to be held here today for Pasquale Chilo, 35, who pleaded not guilty yesterday before Judge Peter H. Mulholland to the murder of James Tommaso, 45. Tommaso was found slain yesterday in Mrs. Chilo's room.

Master Billy Scott, E. Market St., is confined indoors with measles. His little sister, Geneva, recently recovered from the disease.

Each member of the Woman's Culture Club is requested to notify Mrs. Edna Woodson of Wilberforce Monday, May 19, if she is going to attend the meeting at her home

The play will be given again Friday night at 8:15. Reserved seats may be procured at Sohn's. About a half capacity house attended Thursday's performance. The high school orchestra, under the direction of William Hugh Miller played the accompaniment.

The comedy part of the production is carried almost entirely by Jane and Billy. Jane is the typical kid sister and Billy is a real big brother who is always being tormented by the "baby" of the family.

COUNTY GRADUATES ELIGIBLE TO ENTER SCHOLARSHIP TEST

For the second straight year an attempt is to be made to discover the "brightest mind" among this year's high school graduates of Ohio to enter the national scholarship contest for the Edison scholarship to be held at East Orange, N. J., in July.

Instructions have been received by Greene County, Xenia city and exempted village school superintendents relative to the selection of local representatives to the state elimination contest to be held in Columbus July 11. These representatives will be selected upon the basis of scholastic records and special interest in mathematics and the physical sciences.

Ohio was represented last year by Hugo Spatz, of Bexley, who won the state contest but failed to achieve the national honor.

This was won by Wilbur Huston, of the state of Washington.

High Schools in Xenia city, townships and exempted village school districts in Greene County have been invited by the state department of education to choose one candidate from this year's graduating class to participate in a state elimination contest, the first step leading to another national contest announced by Thomas A. Edison, noted inventor, for selection of a boy to receive a scholarship at his expense.

Each of the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia will select a boy from among this year's high school graduates to be its representative in the national contest. All state representatives will go to East Orange at Mr. Edison's expense and will be entertained at the Edison laboratories.

All local candidates must be selected and reported to the state committee by June 1. They are to be selected on the basis of scholarship records, particularly in the physical sciences and mathematics, plus a wide general knowledge including current world events. The educational department suggests that the recent state-wide scholarship contest provides objective data that may be of value in selecting representatives.

Each county, city and exempted village district may choose one candidate to participate in the state elimination contest. No plan is proposed by the state committee for the selection of local candidates; each district being left free to adopt such a plan as may seem best calculated to result in the choice of a worthy representative. The state committee desires not numbers but outstanding ability in the representatives to be sent to the state elimination contest.

The selected candidates will be notified of the time and place of the state contest and given such instructions as are necessary by June 4.

ELECT OFFICERS OF YOPEDIO IN XENIA

McKinley Durnbaugh is the new president of the Greene County Yopedio for the coming year. Other officers chosen at the recent second annual conference of the young peoples' division held at the First M. E. Church are: first vice-president, Mary Warwick; second vice-president, William Spahr; third vice-president, Frances O'Hara; fourth vice-president, Dorothy Lunsford; secretary — Wilda Auld, and treasurer, George Moody.

Positive and negative arguments on the question: "Is Dancing a Detriment to Young People?" featured a group discussion but no definite conclusion was reached.

J. Gordon Howard and the Rev. Carey Young were the principal speakers on the program.

If You Have Bad Feet

Read What This Grateful
English Woman Writes
About Radox

"Fifteen years ago I began to suffer with bad feet and corns, and as time went on they got from bad to worse, thus making life a misery. I was recommended to try Radox (after spending small fortune in one cure or another). I found very great relief in a very short time. I am pleased to say that my corns, also the hard skin from the soles of my feet have disappeared, and walking, which was a torture, is now a pleasure. I can assure you that I recommend Radox to all my friends."

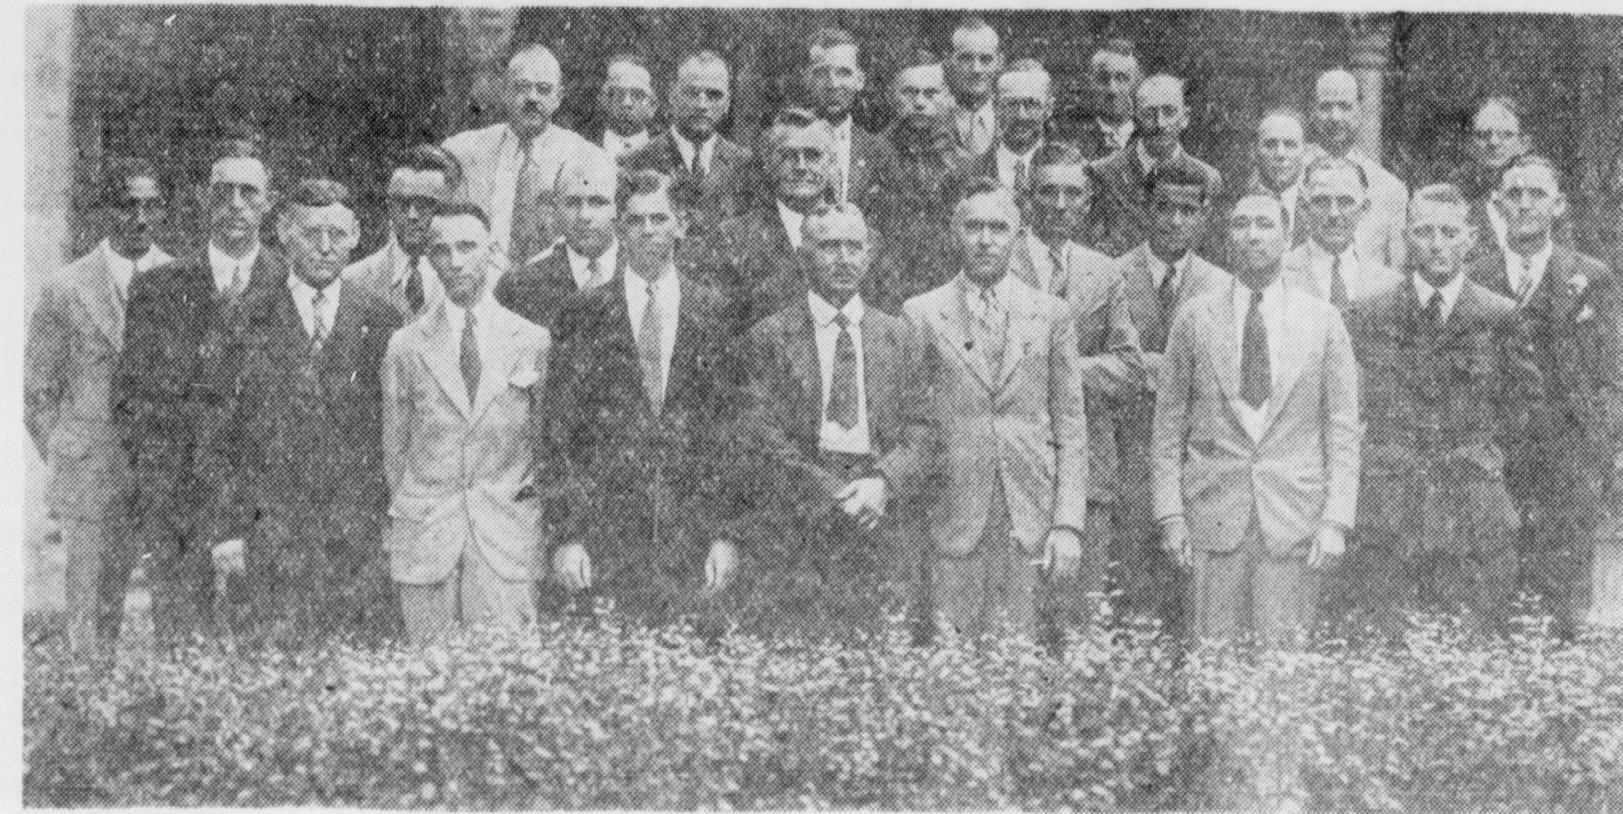

Mrs. L. P. W.
Peterborough, England.
23rd September, 1929.

When you put your feet into a footbath containing Radox, the salts soften the hard outer layers of the corn, and the oxygen which Radox liberates enters the pores, opens them and penetrates further and further, carrying the corn-softening salts right into the root of the corn, which is thus loosened so that it can be lifted out bodily.

Get a generous box of Radox at any drugstore in America—a 15 minute bath three or four successive nights will rid you of corns and callouses.

DIVISION OF TEXAS WOULD SHIFT POWER

WASHINGTON, May 16.—The Texas legislature holds the power of transferring the political prestige of the nation from the northern states to the South by exercising its prerogative to subdivide the huge state of 265,398 square miles, into five separate states, Representative Garner, Democratic minority leader, declared in a statement he had published in the congressional record today.

Should the legislature elect to apply its privilege to disband into "not more than five different states" granted in the joint congressional resolution admitting Texas to the union, and assuming the five territories were added to the union of states, the present territory, with a population of 5,600,000, would have a representation of ten senators at congress instead of two, Garner explained.

INDICT NURSE FOR BEATING PATIENT

CINCINNATI, O., May 16.—Miss Grace Lee Ashby, a nurse at Longview State Hospital here, today had been indicted on an assault and battery charge because she allegedly mistreated a mentally ill patient who refused to take a bath in cold water.

Miss Ashby, according to testimony of Dr. E. A. Baker, hospital superintendent and three nurses, wrapped a towel about the patient's neck and attempted to strangle the woman. Mrs. Christine Seufferle, aged 43, who was received at the hospital April 19.

Mrs. Seufferle, the nurse said, had been choked into a semi-conscious condition. When she was revived and placed in the bath tub, they said, Miss Ashby pushed the woman's head under the water and allegedly attempted to hold it.

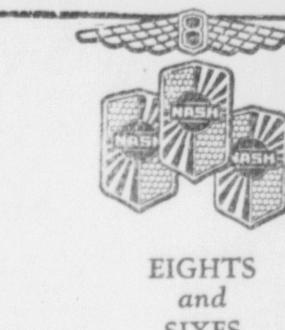

Fleming was released from the county jail last night after he had served seven hours of his sentence. The stay of execution granted Fleming, expires one week after the United States Supreme Court next convenes. Should the Supreme Court refuse to admit Fleming's case, the former councilman's only hope is an appeal to Governor Myers Y. Cooper for executive clemency.

OHIO BANKER DIES
COLUMBUS, O., May 16.—Death today had claimed another prominent Columbus man. Fred W. Herbst, former president of the local chamber of commerce, druggist and banker, died at his home here last night after a two-year illness. He was 72 years old.

FLEMING RELEASED PENDING APPEAL

CLEVELAND, May 16.—Free under an order of Carrington T. Marshall, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court, Thomas W. Fleming, who is under a 33-month sentence for accepting a bribe while he was a city councilman, today prepared to carry his case to the United States Supreme Court.

Fleming was released from the county jail last night after he had served seven hours of his sentence. The stay of execution granted Fleming, expires one week after the United States Supreme Court next convenes. Should the Supreme Court refuse to admit Fleming's case, the former councilman's only hope is an appeal to Governor Myers Y. Cooper for executive clemency.

She Expected a Million Dad Left Her a Dollar!

CLARA DEE FORESTER, beautiful pampered daughter of wealth, with her diamonds and satins, motors and furs, who expected she would someday be mistress of her father's millions, referred to in the chronicles of society as one of the wealthiest girls of the world, sought after by wealth and nobility as a coveted bride, is left exactly one dollar to squander lavishly upon this money-hungry world.

Clara Dee suddenly found herself put on her own resources, like thousands of girls in offices and shops. But her father believed that his girl would measure up to his mark if she were given a chance.

That's really where the story begins. Read about Clara Dee's great struggle to make good in this wonderful story of love, adventure and romance. Almost anyone can share the experiences of a girl like Clara Dee. She is the girl next door, the clerk across the aisle, the girl friend in the office—or you, perhaps—after she lost her millions.

There is tremendous love interest through the story—you will meet Win Baxter, the hero, Ivan Moreau, the artist, who knows all about women, and Don Evans. You are bound to love "Dad's Girl."

The Theater

"I saw Booth shoot Lincoln. I've played Shakespeare and the movies — and I'm twelve years older than 'East Lynne' said William J. Ferguson, for sixty years an actor on the American and European stage, before his death recently in Baltimore.

His death brought to an end an extraordinary theatrical career. He was the last surviving member of the cast of "Our American Cousin," which Abraham Lincoln was watching from a box at Ford's Theater in Washington the night of his assassination. He was the oldest living member of the Lamb's Club, having joined the club in 1898.

Ferguson was author of the book, "I Saw Booth Shoot Lincoln" and was preparing a new volume,

COUNTY BUYS GAS EQUIPMENT FOR USE OF SHERIFF'S OFFICE

County Commissioners were so impressed by an open air public tear gas demonstration held Wednesday afternoon at Cox Athletic Field that the board has authorized purchase of $300 worth of chemical warfare gas equipment for use of the sheriff's office as a means of coping with bandits and other law violators, Sheriff Ohmer Tate disclosed Thursday.

The equipment has been ordered from The Lake Erie Chemical Co., Cleveland, O., and includes a field gun with an adequate supply of long and short range gas projectile shells, a riot pistol, two gas billets, two gas masks and a half dozen hand grenades.

It is understood that Police Chief O. H. Cornwell also expects to request City Commission to purchase a quantity of gas equipment

Herman Blair and Coach Lane gave our baseball champs a treat Wednesday by taking them to see the Keds play Brooklyn at Cincinnati.

Miss Rebecca Sanders, who suffered a slight stroke Wednesday is improving slowly.

Mrs. George Knee was a Xenia visitor Thursday.

Mrs. C. A. Venable and daughter visited in Xenia Wednesday.

for the Xenia Police Department.

The sheriff's office, located on the second floor of the Court House, is in a strategic position to protect Xenia's three banks and other business houses in the center of the business district. From the Court House, officers equipped with gas-discharging weapons command the greater part of the business section.

The claim is made that gas is the most simple and effective means of preventing hold-ups. One shot from a gas weapon, fired in any direction inside the average room at or near the beginning of a hold-up, will successfully defeat the robbery.

An advantage of tear gas is that it is more humane and less dangerous to customers and employees of a bank or any store since it cannot produce any permanent injury if it hits the wrong party.

It is specifically claimed that, if fired directly at one or more bandits they will be totally but not permanently rendered helpless. Even when not fired directly at bandits the gas will fill the average room in sixty seconds, driving out the bandits and making a successful hold-up impossible. After the gas has lost its initial velocity it will spread at the rate of 275 cubic feet a second and one shell renders at least 25,000 cubic feet uninhabitable.

Finally, chemical warfare gas is claimed to be the most modern method of saving lives and property.

YOUNG WIFE BRINGS SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Martha Franklin Peterson, 20-year-old Columbus stenographer, charges among other things in a suit for divorce filed at Columbus Thursday against Lawrence M. Peterson, prominent farmer and cattle buyer of Caesarcreek Twp., near Xenia, that her husband forced her to milk five cows daily besides doing all the housework in her mother-in-law's home.

Mrs. Peterson, in making a formal charge of gross neglect of duty, also complained that members of her husband's family constantly mistreated her. She said also that she had wanted to start housekeeping but that her husband insisted upon living in his mother's home.

The Petersons were married at Springfield, October 3, 1929.

XENIAN HAS PART IN COLLEGE PLAY

Miss Elizabeth Stout will take the role of "Widow Scarlet" in the annual senior class play, "Sherwood" by Alfred Noyes, which will be presented by members of the senior class of Western College for Women at Oxford, at the Ernst Nature Theater, in connection with the annual Tree Day exercises, Tuesday, May 20.

Miss Stout is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stout, Hill St., this city and will graduate from the college in June.

GIVEN SMALL FINE AFTER CONVICTION

Convicted by a jury in Common Pleas Court Thursday of a charge of receiving stolen property, Henry Crawford, colored, was fined $15 and costs by Judge R. L. Gowdy. Crawford did not file a motion for a new trial. He was released upon his promise to pay the assessment in $5 weekly installments.

The Negro was indicted by the May grand jury for having in his possession a half-inch electric drill valued at $40, stolen from F. W. Hughes, Dayton Ave.

SPORT-FILLED SUMMER DAYS

BATHED IN MOUNTAIN BREEZES... AT GROVE PARK INN

Plunge headlong into every joy at Grove Park Inn—far from any hint of Summer's depressing heat. Lofty mountains send down their cooling zephyrs as you enjoy perfect golf over the close-cropped fairways and baize-like greens of the Asheville Country Club course . . . a short mashie pitch from your breakfast table. Tennis, riding, canoeing, swimming, archery and hiking . . . anything you wish to do leaves you vigorous and refreshed. Broad ribbons of concrete invite you to lazy, breeze-swept motor rides into these blossom-laden, mile-high hills . . . by mountain streams that sing among gigantic rocks . . . along the shores ofpell-mell lakes . . . past waterfalls that tumble from dizzy heights into clouds of spray beneath. Pisgah and the Rat, Mt. Mitchell, the Great Smokies, all the rugged giants of this Land of the Sky are decked out in gayest colors. Up in these cool green mountains, there is always something to do, somewhere to go. Brilliant social life centers about the Inn. You may dance in the cool evening if you wish . . . then sleep under welcome blankets, between sheets of Oxford twill, your head on pillows of purest down. No place in all the world is like Grove Park Inn. Luxurious comfort crowns its unique, rough-hewn beauty. A staff famous the world over sets peerless standards in service. The cuisine stands alone, unsurpassed. Hospitality reigns with open hand. The Inn operates the whole year through. American Plan. Your reservations now will protect your share in these glorious Summer days.

MOTORING NO LONGER REQUIRES "costumes"

The linen duster, goggles and the motoring veil went out of fashion when people stopped thinking of the automobile as "the horseless carriage." Nowadays, nobody puts on special apparel for a Sunday drive. And Shell Motor Oil has helped make motoring a matter-of-fact necessity. As the automobile developed, Shell has regularly anticipated lubrication requirements. Always a step ahead, it is ready now for the models which will be announced next year. That is why owners of all kinds of cars are turning to Shell Motor Oil in ever increasing numbers for the protection they know their engines must have. All the world knows that if the Shell organization cannot make a quality lubricant, no organization can. Have you tried it?
